

Greetings Champion!

Blessings and increase to you in the mighty name of Jesus! God is with you, and God is for you!

An obsessive thought is like a seed planted in your mind that will definitely produce a predictable crop. Good or bad.

If you plant a natural seed, it can produce corn, wheat, tomatoes, weeds, or poisonous nightshade. Everything depends on the nature of the seed.

Like a seed, whatever idea you focus on, and holding your imagination, whether it is negative or positive, constructive or destructive, it will bring forth fruit after its own kind.

Creative focus and imagination is a powerful gift God gave to you.

The industry of the entire southern United States was changed by one man's focused thought and creative imagination.

One evening as he sat in his home, he watched his cat trying to pull his canary through the bars of its cage. As the bars protected the canary, the cat only succeeded in getting a claw full of feathers. This caused the man to visualize an iron claw pulling cotton from a cotton plant.

And so it was that Eli Whitney invented an amazing machine: the cotton gin.

Our creative imagination can certainly be used to overcome not just personal problems, but even world problems. As we are determined to trust God, we must never think of any situation as hopeless or unsolvable.

Someone said, "All problems are really opportunities in disguise." The Chinese realized this. Their symbol for "crisis" is made up of two other symbols: one for "problem" and one for "opportunity."

Bearing this in mind, we should carefully examine every so-called crisis in our lives for any hidden opportunity in it. We take advantage of the opportunity by believing God to show us the opportunity and showing us how it can benefit us.
